Monthly Newsletter from the leader in sandbox software for DevOps and Cloud Automation

As the Spring clock changes in the United states and other countries the world over, we see the pace of change accelerating in countries that are heading into summer. This is a period of hectic activity and where any increase in human productivity can make a measurable difference. Automation platforms make themselves very relevant during this time allowing teams to better collaborate, be more productive and to gain time and cost efficiencies. We see an increased customer pull during this time. Our partner activities start to peak and it's a great time to learn new things. Our introduction of the Quali University self-paced courses is very timely in this regard. The Beta version is free. Try it out now. We'd love your feedback.
